Puma is a German multinational corporation and the third largest sportswear manufacturer in the world.

As a well-known brand across the globe the company has an impressive compound with a fashionable headquarters based in Herzogenaurach. This includes PUMA house, a new exhibition space that functions as a showroom and also includes various customer restaurants. The combination of concrete walls, exposed ventilation pipes and fluorescent lights created a modern and minimalistic industrial aesthetic.

To complete the look Puma decided to install Amtico Spacia Plaza Concrete across the 3300 sqm space. The combination of evenly colored, pale grays with a smooth texture creates versatility and durability at the same time.

Our Concrete product also removes the challenges presented by poured surfaces and heavy ceramics – offering instead a floor that can be laid quickly and used immediately.
