This office project showcases the coworking and dining areas of the company ab medica, which provides innovative healthcare solutions, including robotic technologies. Their Milan headquarters received a completely bespoke look thanks to the collaboration between Amtico's Italian business partner Eco Contract and the architect Albera Monti.

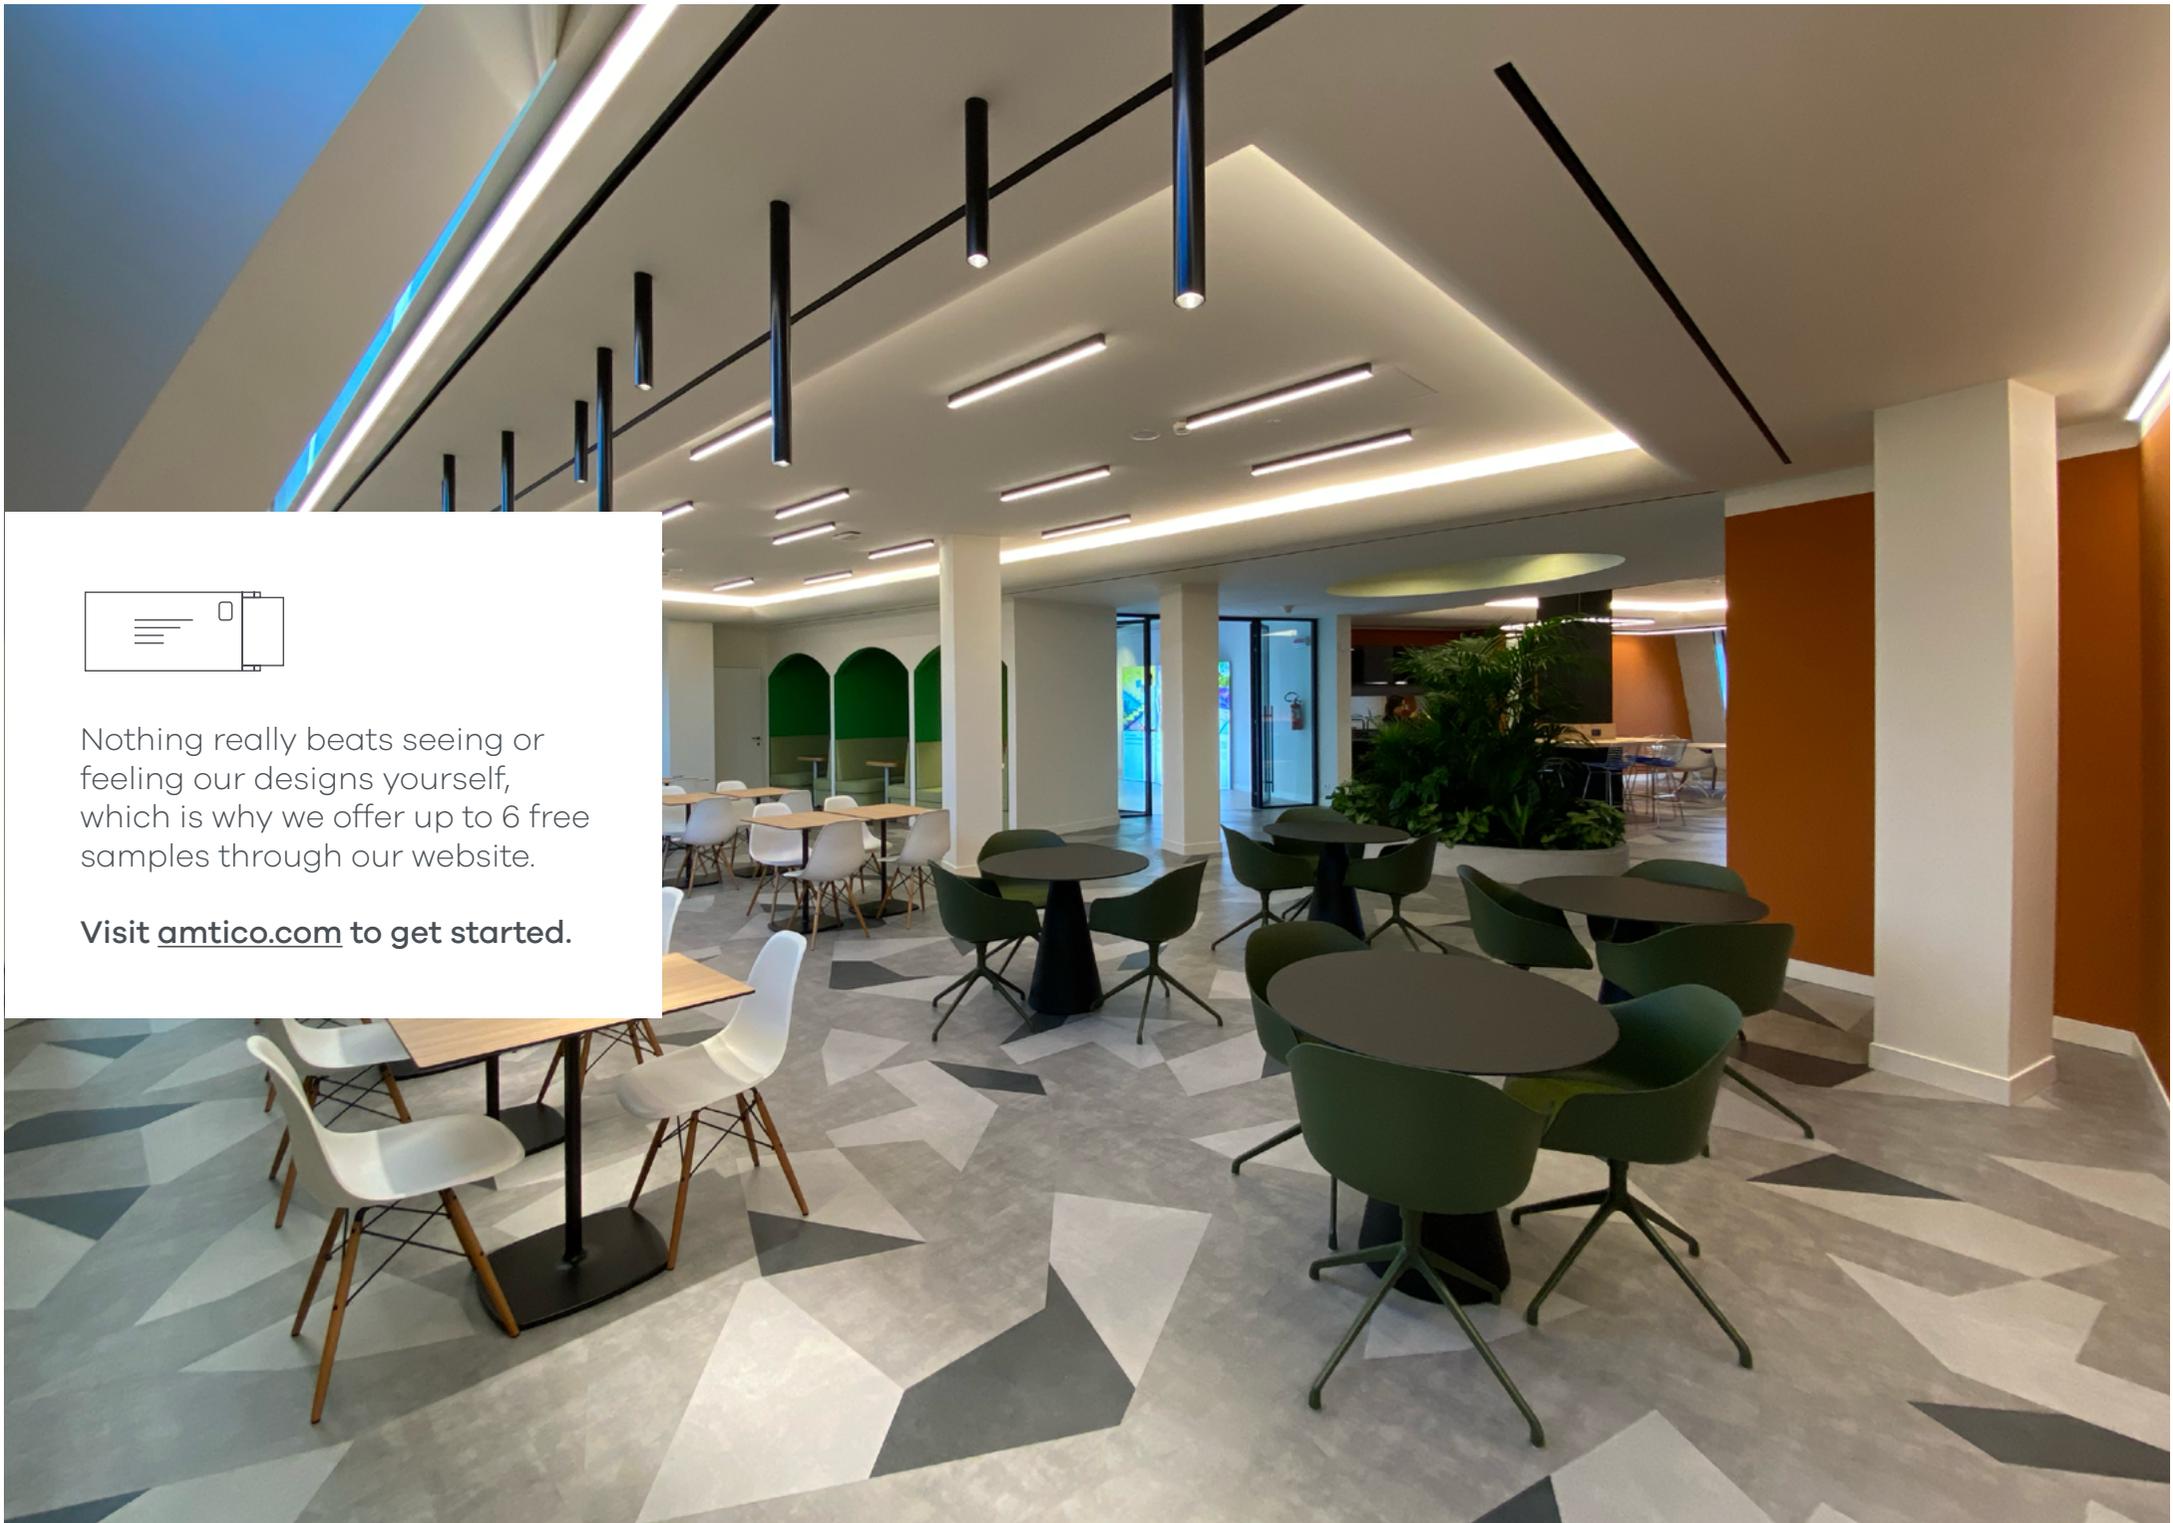

The inspiration for this project is drawn from the iconic forms of the renowned Italian architect Gio Ponti. A geometric carpet design from 1954 was reinterpreted and transformed into bespoke LVT tiles. Each module measures 2m x 2m and was laid with a 90-degree rotation to avoid visible repetition. When installed, the joints become virtually invisible, creating a seamless floor surface throughout the space.

The result is a unique flooring concept created specifically for this project. Its large scale works beautifully in a professional environment, combining durability with innovative design.

Nothing really beats seeing or feeling our designs yourself, which is why we offer up to 6 free samples through our website.

This bespoke flooring features three designs from the Colour Edit palette of Amtico's Signature collection. Colour Edit offers a range of 25 shades, specifically developed to ensure perfect harmony and matchability between all colours. The base floor showcases Stucco Pebble, a cool concrete design with urban charm. The geometric forms feature the light contemporary Diffusion Lux and the deep grey Encaustic Storm.

This inspirational project is a striking visual highlight, made exclusively with Amtico flooring. All products from the Amtico Signature collection offer an additional benefit: integral antimicrobial surface protection that provides a hygienic environment where bacteria and viruses struggle to multiply or survive.

This project is a perfect example of how ideas can become reality through Amtico's Design Service. The tiles used are not part of Amtico's standard collection. Each piece was individually cut and laid on site to create a completely bespoke flooring design. Amtico's in-house CAD experts and manufacturing teams work hand in hand to precisely calculate, plan, and deliver custom shapes and sizes.
